THE VILLISCA REVIEW

XLI, NO. 47 — VILLISCA, IOWA, THURSDAY, JUNE 20, 1912 — EIGHT PAGES

STATE OF DREAD

Wrought Up to High Nervous Tension, and Families Are "Doubling Up" Man is Armed

e fiendish murder of J. B. ad family and Misses Lena Stillinger on Sunday night, the city of Villisca and the g country and even the ng towns have been living in nervous tension that is pit- old. Men and women both, ir helplessness against the who kills in the night, are y precaution that another a similar nature does not the city scores of families ing up and in a number of as many as three and four almost every man in the d, and every door is bolted. for good watch dogs far supply, and those fam- nate enough to possess a anine value him above all have.

Fear of Reaction

is the people's feelings that probable that many women, excitement cools down, will eir beds for a right good sick if the men do not follow mple it will be a wonder. Ev- bolt and every pistol was sold hardware store in the city o days following the tragedy, dealers ordered more only to again. They have orders now ey cannot fill until more ive. In a number of homes e been placed on every door nse, and in other cases every has been wired shut.

ught She Was Drugged at has been the nervous ten- people are beginning to im- things, and incidents which inary occasions would noticed are magnified into g fearful. Mrs. Wash Marsh, West First Street, reported ayor Saturday afternoon that pt had been made to drug her ing some liquid through the and that she had a difficult ing up. She says it occurred ne during Friday night. That rsh dreamed it, or immagined general belief, for physicians it is impossible for one to be in this manner. The use of rm or ether would tend first n a person, and to render the nconsious would necessitate a unless the subject were wil-day night another report was hat a man had been seen run- ough houses in the south part , and the officers went post- the scen of the reported ac- t found nobody who had seen It was said later that it was e boys playing, and another as that a man was riding a bi- the side walk and fell off in dy's yard.

Hold Up North of Town?

nd Nay Campbell, two young port an attempt to hold them south of the Gardner ranch Villisca last Thursday night other young man says an at as made to stop his team on ge near Morton's Mill Friday nt Marshal Horton and a posse failed to find any traces of the or culprits, and it is thought at the boys saw a man in the

(Continued on Page 4)

ALMOST SECOND MURDER

Following within a week of the tragedy at Villisca in which eight people lost their lives, another occurred Saturday night shortly after midnight, much different from the other, but none the less regrettable. The result is that one man, United States Deputy Marshal Harrison Kelso of Creston, carries a bullet wound over his right eye and a badly powder marked face, and that another, William (Cherokee) Spragur, is nursing a swollen face as the natural sequence of the rapid and vigorous actions of Kelso's fists. The tragedy was enacted in Night Watchman Henry Overman s rooms up stairs over the postoffice.

Spargur was arrested Monday charged with assault with intent to kill, and he was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace E. C. Gibbs at the city hall Tuesday afternoon, and was bound over to the grand jury under bond of $1,000. According to the testimony of seven witnesses, including the defendant, Spargur came up to Overman room with some liquid refreshment and wanted to leave it there. Nightwatchman Overman ordered him to leave but he refused to go, and the two men got into an altercation. Deputy Kelso, who with Bruce Stillians had just left Overman's rooms, heard the two men quarreling at the foot of the steps, and he returned to separate them Spargur then took up the dispute with Kelso, and from words the two went to blows. Kelso and Overman say that Spargur struck Kelso first—three times in rapid succession—before Kelso knocked him down. Then Spargur reached around into Kelso's holster and extracted his big 45 revolver. Kelso detected the movement and caught Spargur's hand between his knees, at the same time calling to Overman to get the gun away from Spargur. Overman caught hold of the barrel, and said he had it, but Spargur jerked the gun out of his hands, and pointing it towards Kelso's head pulled the trigger. The gun was within a few inches of Kelso's head, and almost the full charge of powder entered the flesh of Kelso's face. The bullet grazed his right eye brow and lodged in the ceiling. Had the gun been one-eighth inch lower it would have blown the very top of Kelso's head off. It was a mighty lucky miss. Kelso's first thought was that his eyes were both gone, and in desperation he proceeded to give Spargur about the worst drubbing he ever had in his life. Then he released his man and asked that he be not arrested.

A physician was summoned to dress Kelso's wounds, and Sunday afternoon he got out of bed, and towards evening dressed and came down town. He is getting along nicely, but it was a mighty close call.

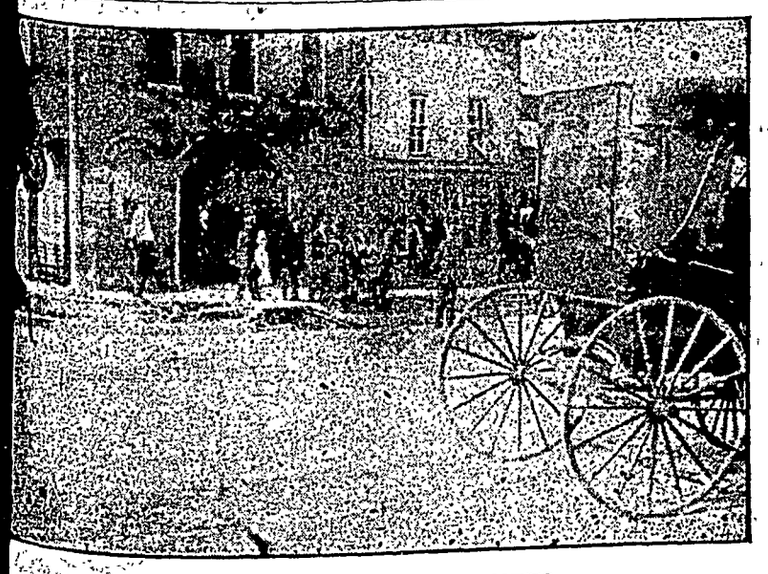

WILL BUILD TWO STORIES

Work of tearing down the walls of the old New York store building at the southwest corner of the square continues in good order, and it will not be long until a new two story brick building, one that will be a credit to the city, will take their place. In an interview with The Review, yesterday F. F. Jones, who bought the corner of the A. P. West estate, stated that definite plans for the construction of the new building had not yet been made but that it would contain two rooms down stairs, and three suites of offices up stairs.

The main room down stairs, that occupied by the New York store, will be leased by W. H. Weber, and will be one of the finest furnished store rooms in southwestern Iowa. From the front door to the back the length will be 100 feet, a balcony 40 feet square being provided in the rear where the ladies' ready to wear department will be installed.

The tenant for the corner room has not yet been decided upon.

The Cozy, the Cozy, THE Cozy, The COZY, THE COZY, Yes, that's it

REMOVING THE CASKETS

The bodies of the eight victims were kept in the city hall until the funeral services were completed in the park, when they were placed in the hearses and taken to the cemetery at the head of one of the largest processions ever seen in southern Iowa The picture shows how thoroughly the national guards men kept the crowd away from the during the time the bodies were there and when they were removed. Standing the photographer who snapped this view were probably five or six persons anxious to catch one last glimpse of the floral bedecked hearses as they came from the temporary morgue.

CLUES TO MURDER FAIL

Detectives and Officers Are No Nearer Apprehending Slayer of Eight Than on First Day—Plenty of Theories but No Evidence

Developments since the murder of J. B Moore and his entire family and Lena and Ina Stillinger on Sunday night, June 9, 1912, have come thick and fast, but have been productful of no tangible clues on which the authorities can do any satisfactory work. Excitement for a time was such that if a person was seen running across the street, or if an automobile whizzed into town at a rate a trifle faster than the ordinary, gossip flew right and left. To sum it all up, there is no clue to the murderer or murderers of J. B. Meore and family to date.

THE FUNERAL IN THE PARK

Probably seven thousand people attended the funeral services for J. B. Moore and family and the Misses Lena and Ina Stillinger at Villisca on Wednesday afternoon, June 12, 1912. The crowd paid strict attention to the speaker, Rev. W. J. Ewing, and there was no disorder of any kind. On every face was plainly depicted the deep sorrow the community felt, and the oppressive sense of fear and dread, which reached a tense climax by Sunday was already beginning to show itself in the drawn faces at the funeral Wednesday. The picture shows the speakers' stand, and is taken from the north side of the square, looking south. The open space is directly opposite the city hall.

Ratcliff to Monmouth, Illinois

Upon summons from Sheriff W. T. Fitzpatrick of that city County Attorney W. C. Ratcliff and Fay VanGilder and her mother left Thursday evening on No. 12 for Monmouth, Illinois, to ascertain what connections the suspect there by the name of Joe Rick might have with the Villisca murder. Rick is said to have admitted being in Villisca but later denied it. A man accosted Fay Van Gilder near the high school in Villisca last Saturday and asked her where the court house was and she told him there was none in Villisca. When she described the man to her aunt, Mrs. J. B. Moore, Mrs. Moore remarked that the same man had passed her home a couple of times. Miss Van Gilder was taken to Monmouth in the hopes that she might identify the suspect there as the man who had spoken to her, but in this she failed. Rick told the county attorney that he was in Ottumwa the night of the murder and he described a restaurant there where he had eaten. On his return to Villisca County Attorney Ratcliff stopped at Ottumwa and interviewed the lady who keeps the restaurant spoken of by Rick and she verified his statement as to his having been there. The report that Rick had blood on his shoes and that he admitted being in Villisca caused many people to think that he might be the man wanted at Villisca, but Rick explained that the shoes he wore he had gotten of another tramp. The first positive news that Rick was not the man was given to the Villisca public in an extra edition of The Review on Friday afternoon, a telegram from the Monmouth Review having been received by the Creston Advertiser-Gazette and by them repeated over the long distance telephone to The Review at Villisca. The telegram was as follows:

"Monmouth, Ill., June 14.—Joe Ricker not man seen at Villisca before murder. District Attorney, Mrs Van Gilder and daughter here. Man not believed connected with the affair."

Moyer's Innocence Is Proven

Detectives D. Delaney and J. M. Buel, who in company with W. B. McCaull, had gone to Nehawka, Nebraska, upon inofrmation that Samuel Moyer had been seen in that city, returned Thursday, and declared that Mr. Moyer was an innocent man. Not only did he come to Nehawka on Sunday morning, as reported, but they interviewed a large number of people who told them that he had been in Nehawka continuously since his arrival. More than that they talked to Mr. Moyer, himself, told him he was suspected, and he said that any time they wanted him he would come to Villisca. He proved a complete alibi, and his presence in Villisca will not be asked. Far from having Moyer placed in handcuffs, and held subject to requisition, as reported in certain daily papers, he was not even arrested. The daily press owes it to Mr. Moyer to exonerate him before the world

Moyer's story was partly borne out by H. Peters, a prominent citizen of Gretna, who told Sheriff Felix McShane and Deputy Hanger of Omaha that on Tuesday evening he had met the accused man in Omaha near the Union depot at 7 o'clock and had spoken to him about the terrible crime.

Mr. Peters told the officials of his meeting with the relative of the Moores.

He said he got off the train and starrted to walk uptown when he encountered him.

"Moyer lived in Gretna several years, and I knew him very well," said Mr. Peters. "When I saw him, he greeted me first, grinning as he did so. I then pulled out copies of the Omaha papers which I had in my pocket and showed him the paragraphs in which it stated that he was believed to have guilty knowledge of the crime. He laughed, and said he was going out in the state soon and that if any officers thought he had any clues they could come and he would do all in his power to aid them. I advised him to go back to Villisca and prove his alibi and stop further comment, but he only smiled again and went away."

Moyer told Peters that at the time of the murder is supposed to have occurred he was in Nebraska, and that he had witnesses to prove it.

Mr. Peters conducts an undertaking establishment at Gretna and came to Omaha to attend the state convention of undertakers.

Party Had Automobile Accident

On their way to Nehawka, Mr. McCaull and the two detectives, who were in Mr. McCaull's automobile, had an accident about two and one-half miles west of Glenwood, which might have proven fatal. The roads were very muddy, and in order to make the turn to go towards Pacific Junction it was necessary to back the car over the railroad track. Mr. McCaull had a good deal of power on and the rear wheel of his car struck the rail of the track, skidded and the car turned over. All members of the party received a serious shaking up, and Mr. McCaull and one of the detectives were compelled to walk with a limp for some time. The rear wheel of their car was shattered to pieces. Mr. McCaull got a farmer to bring his team and drag the car out from under a fence, and then sent to Glenwood for a new wheel, but there was none available at the garage. He then negotiated with a druggist there, who owns a Ford, to borrow a wheel from him, and the party, after breakfasting at a farm house, continued on their journey, with a delay aggregating no longer than one hour and twenty minutes.

Another Suspect Is Released

A man by the name of Kirk, the man who was captured over by Emerson Wednesday evening of last week, was brought to Villisca by Deputy Marshal Kelso and his men Thursday. but was released from custody after establishing his innocence. Wm. Lear, an escaped inmate of the Clarinda asylum, a trustee whom the hospital officers say they were about ready to dismiss from the institution, was at large Sunday night, and suspicion attached itself to him. He is described as being 32 years of age, 5 feet 8 in. tall, medium weight and in good health. According to a statement of the hospital attaches, over the long distance phone to The Review Wednesday night, the man went south after leaving the asylum, and could not possibly have been in Villisca on the night of the tragedy.

Sheriff O. E. Jackson went to Creston Thursday evening to see if he could find some trace of the man there, a report having been received that he was believed to be in that city. Lear

(Continued on Page 4)

TEMPORARY STREET LIGHTS

Board of Directors of Commercial Club Negotiates With W. M. Binkley for Temporary Street Lighting Arrangement

Acting upon call of the president, J. L. Smith, the board of directors of the Villisca Commercial Club has entered into negotions with W. M. Binkley, of the Villisca Public Service Co. to provide a temporary street lighting service in Villisca to begin immediately and endure until August first and longer unless terminated by either the Commercial Club or the Light Co. By the terms of a contract signed by Mr. Binkley and an authorized committee from the Commercial Club there are to be ninety, 40-watt lamps to burn all night at a maximum cost of $1.25 per lamp per month.

The action of the board of directors of the Commercial Club is not meant to embarass the city council in their fight for a better lighting service, and it is the distinct understanding by all parties to the agreement that the arrangement shall in no wise be used to prejudice the city's case in court. The commercial club is not seeking to take any side in the light controversey but has taken this step purely in an effort to provide lights until sueh time as the council can act. It is desired that there be lights in the residence portions of the city at any rate.

Bids for Electroliers

The city council met last evening and opened the bids for installing 21 electroliers in the paved section of the city. There were seven bids received, but the council deferred awarding the contract until later. A sample electrolier sent out by the Paxton & Veirling Iron Works of Omaha was receiv- yesterday and will be placed on display this evening. Bids will be received later for lighting the electroliers.

VAN CAMP—NORTON

Mr. William K. Van Camp of Villisca and Mrs. Glendora Norton were married at the home of Mrs G. C. Potteu at St. Joseph Tuesday evening of this week at nine o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jones, a Congregational minister of that city, and was witnessed by a few friends of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Camp arrived in Villisca last evening, and a reception was tendered them at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Van Camp, on West Third Street. They will make their home in Villisca, where the groom has employment in his father's restaurant. Both are widely known in this vicinity and have an unlimited number of friends who will extend to them their very best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

NEW NIGHTWATCHMAN

Nightwatchman Henry Overman resigned from the service Tuesday of this week, and a new nightwatchman by the name of Elliot F. Karns of Nodaway was appointed by Mayor F. L. Ingman to take his place. Mr. Karns has served as nightwatchman at Nodaway for the past twenty-two months, and is a most proficient officer. He began his new duties at Villisca Tuesday night.

LOOKS LIKE TAFT AT CHICAGO

Senator Elihu Root of New York, was chosen temporary chairman of the National Republican convention at Chicago Tuesday by a vote of 558 to 502 over Gov. Francis E. McGovern, of Wisconsin. Root is a Taft man, McGovern was nominated by the Roosevelt-Cummings-LaFollette factions. It was first blood for Taft.

Yesterday a motion by Gov. Hadley of Missouri, to substitute 92 Roosevelt delegates in place of those seated by the National Committee was voted to be tabled by a vote of 564 to 510. During the day there were great demonstrations by both the Taft and Roosevelt admirers, and Convention Hall was at times a veritable mass of yelling men and women. Chairman Root had difficulty maintaining order.

EIGHT DAYS OF CHAUTAUQUA

In order to give Villisca the best chautauqua ever held in this part of the country, the Midland company, under whose management the assembly will be conducted, has added another day making the time from Saturday, July 20, until Saturday July 27, inclusive. Much new talent has also been promised, such as Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Shungapavi, the Indian magician and Senator W. S. Kenyon. The scientific lecture by Prof. Montraville M. Wood, on the first day, is said the best of its kind ever delivered from the platform. Monday C. J. Casey and A. J. Wertman began the selling of advance season tickets, and yesterday C. M. Graham and R. H. Pleak took up the work where they left off. About 200 were sold. They may be purchased at any store in town.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY

A party of four women and one man had a serious runaway accident near Harry Smith's place near Sciola Tuesday afternoon between three and four o'clock, and all the womem were more or less seriously injured. In the party were George Baker and wife, Mrs. J. H. Anderson, Mrs. Mary E. Mitchell, and Mrs. Jane Dunn. They were riding in a top carriage, and one of the horses kicked over the tongue, and the team started to run, overturning the carriage. Mrs. Baker's left arm was broken; Mrs. Dunn's left shoulder was fractured at the joint and her face and forehead were badly bruised. Mrs. Mitchell's ankle was badly sprained and Mrs. Anderson sustained a sprained wrist. Mr. Baker's clothes were were badly torn. The horses ran but a short way, when one of them fell down, and they were stopped.

The party was going north when the accident happened. They were on the way to Frank Gourley's to make a visit.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

Dr. F. S. Williams, president of the Villisca Armory Co., has called a meeting of stockholders for this evening at half past seven o'clock at the City Hall. The purpose is to ratify the articles of incorporation as prepared by the board of directors and to transact such other business as may arise. The meeting will adjourn early.

WANTED—Any kind of job printing. Good work. Prices reasonable. Promptness assurred. The Review.

TAKING THE TRAIL

Elmer Noffsinger and his famous Beatrice, Nebraska, bloodhounds leaving the J. B. Moore home on the scent of the murderer. The dogs on three different occasions followed the same route to the river, going a block north from the house, then turning west on Second street to First avenue and thence south on First avenue, across the John Green and Mrs E. A. Neilsson farms to the banks of the West Nodaway, where they lost the trail. Footprints were plainly discernible in certain places crossed by the dogs, and at other times, even where the ground was soft, no marks of any kind were visible to the sight. Noffsinger stated with great positiveness that his dogs were on the scent of the murderer, and that he escaped by going into the river, a theory in line with that of his having escaped in a canvas boat down the river.