The improvements on the Villisca depot are progressing rather slowly, but surely. The electric lights have been installed and are now being used in the place of the kerosene lamps which have been in service for many years A new telegraph switch board has also been put in, much to the delight of the operators. And in time the unsightly cement floor, which is now causing so much comment by strangers coming here, will be covered with tile and with a generous supply of paint the depot will be greatly improved.
