MISS MEANS WINS FIRST

Adjudged Best Speaker Over All in Oratorical Contest Held at Opera House in This City Friday Night of Last Week—Others Were Good

Miss Belvia Means, a member of the sophomore class in high school, won highest honors over all contestants in the oratorical contest at the opera house Friday evening of last week. Miss Means was the second speaker in the humorous class, and the subject of her reading was "At the Matinee." The judges declared that Miss Means could have gotten no more out of her piece than she did, and, although the decision was not at first unanimous, Miss Means' performance was certainly very good. Second highest honors over all were accorded Miss Madge Green, second speaker in the dramatic class, whose subject, "The Lost Word," was a very difficult one to handle. Mrs. Ida White Robb, who trained the contestants, stated at the conclusion of the contest that Miss Green could not have done more with her piece, and that she was a very close second to Miss Means Miss Green was first in the dramatic class.

Winners in the oratorical class were Messrs. Will Focht and Frank Moore, the former being awarded first place. Mr. Focht's subject was "The Wandering Jew." He spoke clearly, and presented a pleasing appearance on the stage. Mr. Moore, who won second place, surprised everybody with his talent, and by many was picked for first place. His lecture, "Bridging the Bloody Chasm," was the speech of Senator John Sharp Williams in the senate at the time the matter of voting an appropriation for the establishment of a confederate monument at Vicksburg was taken up for consideration. The speech was uttered in reply to Senator Heyburn of Idaho, and at times fairly reeked with sarcasm. Mr. Moore spoke slowly and with emphasis, injecting sarcasm where most effective, becoming eloquent where eloquence was needed and again witty or pathetic. Mr. Moore has the first requisite of a senator, and may be one some day. His work in the contest was good.

Vernon Atwood gave a "Eulogy of Charles Sumner," written by Carl Schurz, Mr. Atwood spoke clearly, his articulation was good, and his oration was as a whole delivered with great credit to the speaker. "Emmett's Vindication," by Fred Greaves, was also very creditably rendered. Brant Hill's subject was "A Retributive Justice," and was nicely handled.

Second winner in the dramatic class was Miss Lorraine Best, whose

DOG WAS MAD

The following letter from Dr. Henry Albert, the state bacteriologist at Iowa City, was received by Mayor F. M. Kelsay last Friday, and is conclusive proof that the large black and white Shepherd dog, which created so much excitement in the city last week, was afflicted with hydrophobia:

Bacteriological Laboratory
Iowa State Board of Health
(University of Iowa)
Iowa City, Iowa, Dec. 11, '12

Mayor F. M. Kelsay,
Villisca, Iowa.

Dear Sir

Head of dog received and duly examined. We find the characteristic Negri bodies present, thus proving without a doubt that the dog suffered from hydrophobia. We advise that all dogs and animals bitten be killed at once, and all others in the immediate vicinity of this dog's home be watched with great care for six months to stamp out, if you can, any possibility of an outbreak of rabies.

Very truly yours,
HENRY ALBERT.

Immediately upon receipt of the above letter Mayor Kelsay issued a proclamation ordering all dogs in the city muzzled or tied up for a period of six months, upon penalty of their being shot. The proclamation is to take effect on Friday, December 20, 1912, and will be rigidly enforced until the 20th day of June, next year.

Rabies is a disease very often misunderstood, but its importance can never be overestimated. Dogs afflicted do not as a rule froth at the mouth, unless it be very hot weather. They are not prone to attack persons or animals unless they come directly in their way They do not abhor water, but on the contrary crave it above all else in the world, but a sort of paralysis of the throat makes it impossible for them to drink, and the sight of water, for this reason, often makes them vicious. They will refuse their food, and in the early stage of the disease are inclined to mope by themselves, slinking away from their best friends. After a few days, they stray off, snapping at everything in their path. The disease is contracted from their bite, the saliva being very poisonous. The disease usually develops in from nine days to six months, although cases have been known where it took two years for the infection to show up. If your dog seems inclined to keep to himself, refuses his food and water, put a muzzle on him and tie him up.. If he later attempts to snap or bite, kill him. There is no cure for rabies

Three cases asking that men be sent to the State Hospital for Inebriates at Knoxville came up, and two of these were sent to Knoxville for treatment. DIED AT BOZEMAN, MONTANA

Mrs. Mary Mallery Peckham, wife of Orlando Peckham of this city, died at Bozeman, Montana, Thursday, December 12, 1912, at 10.45 in the morning after a lingering illness. The cause of death is directly attributed to anemia, and followed a nervous breakdown which was greatly aggravated by the tragedy in Villisca last June Mrs Peckham lived next door to the J. B. Moore family, and was the first to surmise that a tragedy had been enacted there The awful affair so preyed upon her mind that health gradually failed her. On the third of December, Mrs. Peckham was taken to Montana in hopes that her condition might be ameliorated, her daughter, Mrs E. C. Hough and son, E. L Peckham, and Dr. Hough accompanying her, but all that loving hands could do was of no avail She died at the age of 63 years, 7 months and 11 days.

The body was brought to Villisca Saturday and funeral services were held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Hough Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The interment was in the Villisca cemetery.

Mary Mallery was born at West Clarksville, New York, May 1, 1849, removing at the age of seventeen to Grundy county, Illinois, where her marriage to Orlando Peckham was solemnized the same summer. There were two children, Hattie and Ernest, who, with the husband, survive. The family came to Villisca in 1887.

Mrs Peckham became a member of the Advent Christian church in early childhood, uniting with the M E. church in 1887, to which she belonged at the time of her demise

Besides the husband and children, Mrs Peckham is survived by two brothers, Joseph Mallery I[illegible] in Washington, and George Mallery living in New York There are also two sisters, Mrs Martha Wilkins of Olean, New York, and Mrs Jonathan Wise of Villisca

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. J Ewing, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Villisca, and Rev. J W. Taylor, of the M. E. church. Many friends of the bereaved family attended, and the floral tokens of love and sympathy were both numerous and beautiful. Mrs. Peckham was beloved of many friends, and her passing is greatly deprecated in the wide circle of her acquaintanceship.
